

PANAMA

Route For Canal Chosen By The Senate.

ONLY SMALL MAJORITY FOR THE AMENDMENT

BUT SIX ARE AGAINST THE BILL

Fairbank's Proposal for Bond Issue to Construct Waterway Goes Through Without Trouble.

Washington, D. C., June 20.—By a vote of 67 to 6 the Senate late yesterday afternoon, as bulletined to the Advocate, after protracted voting on various amendments, adopted the Panama route as the people's course for the isthmian canal. Interest in the proceedings lagged until the time for voting had arrived, at which hour all was bustle and confusion. Senators entered the Chamber from the corridors and committee rooms, and the greatest interest was manifested. Senator Hanna took a seat next to Senator Spooner, the one usually occupied by Senator Allison, and kept in close touch with the popular Wisconsin Senator throughout his adroit management of the substitute proposed by him to the House bill, and which practically reverses that measure from providing for a canal via the Nicaragua route to the route via Panama.

There was not a break in the several votes on amendments to cause excitement as to the result, and after several votes on amendments to cause excitement as to the result, and after several roll calls on propositions identical to the Spooner substitute, all of which were voted down, the Spooner amendment was adopted—yeas 42, nays 34—and the House bill, as thus amended—substituting Panama for the Nicaragua route—was then passed by a vote of 67 against 6—those voting in the negative being Messrs. Bate, Cockrell, Daniel, Dubois, Pettus and Vest.

The Senate voted to insist upon its amendment to the House bill, and asked for a committee of conference. Upon this committee the President pro tempore appointed Senators Morgan, Hanna and Kittredge.

Messrs. Hanna and Kittredge were the recipients of hearty congratulations upon the result of their efforts, they having been the champions of the Spooner substitute, believing that the Panama route in every respect is more feasible for the great water way than the proposed Nicaragua route.

The action of the Senate on the canal bill was followed by the members of the House with great interest. A request for a conference from one branch is sufficiently unusual to excite much comment, although not without precedent. It was taken for granted the object of requesting a conference was to prevent the House from being called upon to vote on the Spooner bill direct, it being thought a conference report would be more likely to receive favorable consideration. While over one hundred members of the House voted in favor of the Panama route when the bill was before the House, this number included many who were opposed to any canal whatever, and who voted for the Panama route only because they thought by doing so they might prevent the construction of a canal. The House has been overwhelmingly in favor of the Nicaraguan route and many members expressed the belief of today that the project was dead for the remainder of the session.

Others entertained a contrary view and indicated a purpose on the part of the Republicans to take up the matter as a political question on the ground that the vote in the Senate showed the Republicans favored the Panama route and the Democrats the Nicaraguan route.

tion to negotiate with the government of the United States a treaty for appropriate concessions for an isthmian canal on terms substantially as proposed by the government of the United States."

Mr. Morgan particularly denounced the Panama Canal route as a "place where labor and death join hands." He said he had been trying to protect the United States from the shame of intercourse with it. Those who wanted "to touch that thing," might do so. "I would not do it," he declared, "for both canals."

Mr. Clark (Mont.) in support of the Nicaraguan route, thought if one-half the objections to both the Nicaraguan and the Panama routes were valid, neither route would be adopted. However, he was satisfied the consensus of conservative opinion in this country was that a great isthmian waterway should be constructed. The American people, he said, were not to be deterred.

"You may delay the project," said he, "but you cannot defeat it."

The difficulties of constructing the canal, he believed, were exaggerated. The Panama Canal scheme was a hoodoo which ought to be shunned and avoided. It had left a heritage of ruin, disaster and desolation.

At 2 p. m. the debate was taken on the Spooner amendment, substituting the Senate Committee bill favoring the Panama route for the House bill providing for the Nicaragua route.

The Isthmian Canal bill passed by the Senate provides substantially as follows:

Section 1 authorizes the President to acquire for the United States at a cost not exceeding $40,000,000 all of the rights and other property, &c., owned by the new Panama Canal company of France, on the Isthmus of Panama and in Paris, including all the capital stock, not less, however, than 68,863 shares of the Panama Railroad company, provided a satisfactory title can be obtained.

Section 2 authorizes the President to acquire from the Republic of Columbia exclusive and perpetual control of a strip of land not less than six miles wide from the Caribbean Sea to the Pacific Ocean, and the right to construct thereon the proposed canal. The President also may acquire such additional territory and rights from Columbia as in his judgment will facilitate the general purpose of the act.

By Section 3 $40,000,000 is appropriated to pay for the property of the new Panama Canal Company, and a sufficient amount to pay Colombia for the territory acquired from that country for building the canal. The President is then authorized to proceed with the construction of the canal, utilizing as far as is practicable the work already done. Provision is made for the construction for safe and commodious harbors at the termini of the canal, and for such works of defense as may be necessary for the safety and protection of the canal and harbors.

By Section 4 the President is given the alternative authority of proceeding with the construction of an isthmian canal by what is known as the Nicaragua route in the event that he is unable to secure a satisfactory title to the property of the new Panama Canal Company, and the control of the necessary territory from Colombia, after first having obtained for the United States exclusive and perpetual control by treaty of the necessary territory from Costa Rica and Nicaragua, the provisions as to tonnage and draft of vessels, as to harbors and as to works of defense being the same as in the section relating to the Panama route. An appropriation is made of such sums as may be agreed upon by treaty as compensation to Nicaragua and Costa Rica for concessions and rights granted to the United States.

Section 5 appropriates $10,000,000 toward the project contemplated and provides that appropriations are not to exceed in the aggregate the additional sum of $135,000,000, if the Panama route is adopted, or $180,000,000 should the Nicaragua route be selected.

Section 7 creates an Isthmian Canal Commission of seven members to be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate. They are to have charge of construction of the canal, and are to be subject to the direction and control of the Executive. At least four of the seven are to be skilled in the science of engineering.

HANGED

Were Two Negro Murderers In Maryland.

JOHNSON REMAINED STUBBORN TO THE END.

THE MURDER WAS REVOLTING.

One of the Men Confessed—Johnson Once Killed a Man in Kentucky, Also.

Ellicott City, Md., June 20.—Frank Jones and John Johnson, negro murderers, of Israel Redetsky, a Hebrew peddler, were hanged in the jail yard here this morning. Johnson was stubborn to the end.

The murder was revolting. Redetsky was shot then battered to death by pick handles and robbed March 4. The facts sifted out and settled on Jones and Johnson. Jones confessed. Last week Johnson made two attempts at suicide.

Johnson confessed that he killed John Harman a year ago. He has feigned insanity but that is one of his old games. Johnson killed a fellow convict in the penitentiary in Kentucky and escaped while serving a term of 21 years.

MONEY GONE

So Snyder Walked from Cleveland to Home in Knox County When He Missed His Train.

Mt. Vernon, O., June 20.—Walter Snyder, a well known young man of this place, will surely receive the medal for being the champion walker of Knox county. Last Sunday he went to Cleveland on the C. & A. C. excursion train and had the misfortune to miss the returning train in the evening. He was out of money and in his plight he started to walk to Mt. Liberty, a distance of 135 miles. After walking the entire distance he reached his home in this place late Wednesday afternoon, tired out, but much pleased with his trip.

BISHOP

THE MUCH MARRIED BLIND MAN

Who Poses as a Rich Mine Owner at Lima—His Past History in Newark.

Thomas Bishop, the blind man, who recently disappeared from Lima, leaving a wife in destitute circumstances, whom he had married in Findlay, representing himself as a rich Mexican mine owner, and who is reported to have been arrested on the charge of beating a hotel and abandoning his wife, has quite a history.

Bishop, previous to his blindness, resided in Newark in the early fifties, and for a time worked as teamster for Dick Durbin. During this time he lost his sight, and in 1853 he secured admission to the State School for the Blind at Columbus. His blindness seemed to superinduce piety and he was a great leader in the prayer meetings of those days. In the spring of 1858 he had a fight with one of the teachers in the school and was expelled from the institution. He then traveled about for some time giving temperance lectures. On one of his trips he married a young girl in Indiana, after which he removed to Hopewell township, in Muskingum county, where he lived on a farm. For some years he was not heard from when he suddenly turned up as a much married man.

Besides his Indiana wife he has married three blind girls, all inside of three weeks. He lived with them for a few days when he deserted them, taking with him all their clothes and jewelry. He was arrested and indicted and sent to the Penitentiary for a term of seven years. In 1876 he was released from the Penitentiary. He since figured in several minor escapades. In 1864 he was arrested in this city by Marshal Ned Rankin on a telegram from Coyt, a prominent merchant tailor of Columbus, on the charge of obtaining a valuable suit of clothes under false pretenses, and also for stealing a glass eye and handsome set of table knives from Dr. Hamilton, of Columbus. He was released however, and soon afterwards borrowed a valuable violin from Mr. Amos Brice, of this city, which he never returned. A few years ago he suddenly put in an appearance in Newark with a fifteen year old son of Steubenville, and after remaining here a few hours hired a horse and buggy and started north. Shortly after he had left the town the girl's father arrived, and immediately started north in pursuit of the flying couple. He overtook them in Knox county, secured possession of his daughter and returned home. Since that time Bishop has figured in a number of minor escapades, but his latest and greatest achievement is the posing as a rich Mexican mine owner and marrying a nurse in Findlay, an account of which has already been published.

SPEECH

Of Cleveland And Hill In New York

DEMOCRATIC UNITY KEYNOTE OF THE MEETING.

CHANCE TO WIN IS THE BEST

Trusts Which Through Tariff are Fostered—Republican Weakness Lost Liberty to Boers.

New York, June 20.—"My days of political activity are past and I shall not hereafter participate in party councils. I am absolutely content with retirement, but I still have one burning, anxious political aspiration. I want to see before I die the restoration to perfect health and supremacy of that Democracy whose mission it is to bless the people—a Democracy true to itself, untempted by clamor, unmoved by the gusts of popular passions and uncorrupted by offers of stratagem, alliance, the Democracy of patriotism, the Democracy of Tilden and the Democracy that deserves and wins success."

With these words ex-President Cleveland closed his address at the dinner given on the occasion of the dedication of the new Tilden Club, Seventy-fifth street and Broadway, last night.

Democratic unity was the keynote of the great gathering of representative Democrats, who had come to attend the opening of the handsome new quarters of the Tilden club. Addresses were made by prominent Democrats, and afterwards a collation was served in the banquet hall to the distinguished guests of the evening, and a buffet supper was served in the basement for the rank and file.

To Democrats the event was one of the most memorable for many a day, as Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill met in harmony, seeking to draw the factions of their party together. It was the first public political appearance of the ex-president in five years. He spoke first. Ex-Senator Hill spoke after him and then Governor A. J. Montague, of Virginia, and Colonel W. A. Gaston of Boston delivered addresses. William J. Bryan had been invited to attend, though not to speak, but no reply was received from him.

Loud and prolonged applause greeted Cleveland and Hill as they entered the assembly room. President Dowling, of the club, soon began to speak, and in introducing ex-President Cleveland said:

"We have founded this club to promote the best interests of the Democratic party. For that reason we have invited Democrats from all parts of the country to listen to the words of those prominent in the party. We have named this club after the great statesman, Samuel J. Tilden, and this club stands for the political and governmental honesty for which the name of Tilden stands."

"We have with us here tonight the greatest of living Democrats. The first speaker I have the honor of introducing to you is the successful candidate of two national campaigns, ex-President Grover Cleveland."

Ex-President Cleveland then spoke as follows:

"I have been urged to participate in this occasion by those who have assured me that this handsome structure is to be dedicated tonight to the rehabilitation and consolidation of the Democratic party under the inspiration of a name which during the days of Democratic strength and achievement was honored in every Democratic household. Such an assurance could hardly fail to overcome the temptations of my contented retirement from political activity. Perhaps there are those who would define my position as one of banishment instead of retirement."

"Against this I shall not enter a protest. It is sufficient for me in either case that I have followed in matters of difference within our party the teachings and counsel of the great Democrat in whose name party, peace and harmony are tonight invoked. No confession of party sin should therefore be expected of me. I have none to make, nor do I crave political absolution. I am here to take my counsel with others professing the same party faith concerning the Democratic situation.

"The Democracy party is far from political insolvency, but no one here should be offended by the suggestion that its capital and prospects have suffered serious injury since Mr. Tilden was elected President. Then and afterward Northern Democratic states were not curiosities; Northern Democratic Senators, now practically extinct, were quite numerous, and Northern Democratic governors, now almost never seen, were frequently encountered."

"If this state of impairment exists an instant duty presses upon the manager of the Democratic establishment; and one which they cannot evade with honor. Those of us less prominent in the party—the rank and file—are longing to be led through old Democratic ways to old Democratic victories. We were never more ready to do enthusiastic battle than now, if we can only be marshaled outside the shadow of predestined defeat. Is it too much to ask our leaders to avoid paths that are known to lead to disaster? Is it too much to ask that proven errors be abandoned, and that we be delivered from a death, and relieved from the burden of issues which have been killed by decrees of the American people? Ought we not to be fed upon something better than the husk of defeat? If these questions are met in an honest, manly fashion I believe it will be productive of the best kind of Democratic harmony."

In dealing with new issues we of the Democratic faith, are extremely fortunate in the simplicity of Democratic standards and the ease by which new questions can be measured by those standards. A party based upon care for the interests of all the people, as their aggregate condition demands, ought to be able to deal with new questions in a manner quite consistent with Democratic doctrine and stimulating to Democratic impulses and instincts.

"If we are to have a rehabilitation and realignment of our party in the sense suggested, it is important that it be done openly and with no mystery or double meaning. Our people are too much on the alert to accept political deliverances they do not understand; and the enthusiasm of the Democratic rank and file does not thrive on mystery."

"The Democratic harmony, of which we hear so much, cannot be effectively constructed by mathematical rule nor by a formal agreement on the part of those who have been divided that there shall be harmony. It grows up naturally when true Democratic principles are plainly announced, when Democratic purposes are honestly declared, and, when as result of these confidence and enthusiasm stir the Democratic blood. It was such harmony as this, growing out of such conditions, which with the battle cry of 'Tilden and Reform,' gave us the Democratic victory in 1876 against odds great enough to discourage any but a harmonious Democracy, and against an opposing force brazen and desperate enough to take from us by downright robbery what the voters of the land gave to us."

"I believe the times point to another Democratic opportunity as near at hand, but I believe we shall reap the fruits of it only by following the line of conduct I have indicated. In any event I have a comforting and abiding faith in the indestructibility of the party which has so many times shown its right to live and its power for good, and I am sure the reserve of patriotic Democratic wisdom will at some time declare itself in the rescue of our country and our party."

Mr. Cleveland closed with the definitive statement of his retirement from political activity.

When Mr. Cleveland announced his retirement from politics the crowd yelled, "No, no, no."

Senator David B. Hill, who spoke next, was received almost as enthusiastically as Mr. Cleveland.

Mr. Hill at the outset of his talk said:

"The signs of the times point unmistakably to an awakening in the promotion of the success of Democratic principles of government. There is especially a deep conviction among thoughtful people that there is something radically wrong in the foreign policy of the present Administration."

Reference was then made to Hoar's recent speech in the Senate on the Philippine question, and the deduction

POWDER

Exploded Killing Four And Injuring Others.

COINING MILL WAS COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

FLAMES STUCK TO CLOTHING

Charring the Bodies of the Men in a Horrible Manner—Two Victims Will Die.

Johnstown, Pa., June 20.—The coining mill of the Cambria Powder company's plant at Seward, 19 miles from Johnstown, blew up yesterday afternoon killing three men and injuring five others, one of whom has since died.

The Dead.

J. B. Smith, of Seward, 65 years old married and leaves a large family.

John Rhodes, of Seward, 38 years old, married.

Charles Drover, of Wapwallopen, Luzerne county, 35 years old and unmarried.

W. E. Bracken, of Seward, married.

The Injured.

Frank Wakefield, of Seward, married, seriously burned.

Thomas Gordon, unmarried; seriously burned.

John B. McCulough, of Seward, slightly burned about hands and feet.

Seymour Allison of Seward, slightly burned.

The explosion occurred as the men were loading a lot of powder on a wagon driven by Rhodes. The team scared and ran away. Smith had charge of the coining mill, and others were sent to the place to assist in loading the kegs in the vehicle.

Suddenly there was an explosion and the flames flew in every direction, the powder sticking in the clothing of the men and then becoming ignited by the flames, burning into the flesh of the victims, and blackening them into charred and shapeless masses.

A strange feature of the accident is the fact that Drover was able to walk 300 yards from the scene of the explosion before he fell dead from his terrible burns. His flesh like that of other victims, was reduced to a crisp. The shanty in which the coining mill is located was ignited by the explosion of the powder and was burned to the ground, but the financial loss is slight.

Bracken, Wakefield and Gordon were hurried to a hospital in this city where Bracken died last night and it was announced that Wakefield and Gordon could not live.

Of Extra Session of Congress this Summer Is Revived by President's Stand in Cuba.

Washington, June 20.—The President's reiteration of his determination to provide for tariff reduction on Cuban imports has revived the talk of an extra session. There are those who believe that if the matter is not attended to at the present session of Congress the President will reassemble the law makers in extra session this summer.

Panama Route.

New York, June 20.—This morning's Tribune says editorially:

So, after all, it is to be Panama and not Nicaragua. That was the decision of the Senate yesterday—of that Senate in which the Nicaraguan route has long had one of its ablest champions and certainly its most determined and resourceful. It is not improbable that the House will coincide with the Senate's decision, and that the dispute of centuries will thus be ended in accordance with yesterday's vote.

GOVERNED BY THE "INTERESTS."

We have altogether too much of government by "interest" in this country as matters now stand. Our government has been feeding favored interests for many years at the expense of the consumers by means of tariff laws.

Now we have a fine illustration of the consequences in the behavior of the sugar interests. It would plainly be to the advantage of the country to give the Cuban planters the benefit of our markets, because in that way we would secure the good will not only of the planters but of the great mass of Cubans, and lead them to seek admission to the union as a state in order to secure the advantages of perfect freedom of trade with the American people.

But the sugar interests which have been bribed to support the Republican party government at the expense of the American people, say no. Prompted by greed as insatiable as it is insane, they exercise the power which they owe to the tariff bribe to prevent the establishment of closer relations with Cuba. With innumerable insolence they dictate terms to the power which has enriched them.

They say to Congress that it must pursue a policy which is sure to bring upon the American people the enmity of the Cubans. Their attorneys in the Senate are able to defeat reciprocity by legislation. They are no less able and no less disposed to defeat reciprocity by treaty.

They are determined to exercise their power to defeat it because they wish to prevent the annexation of Cuba as a state of the union.

They well know that the proposed reduction of 20 per cent in the duty on Cuban sugar would not perceptibly affect the price they are able to exact from American consumers. Their leaders have said so in a published statement.

Why, then, do they fight that reduction so relentlessly? For no other assignable reason than because they wish to prevent that perfect freedom of trade which would necessarily result from the admission of Cuba to the union as a state.

In the power to do this which the sugar barons have shown we see a proof that the party which, in reality, governs by interests, thereby makes the interests not only its own masters, but the master of the whole country to its undoing.

The sugar master has already done well nigh irreparable mischief.

INDIANS GO TO WORK

SPHERE OF USEFULNESS FOUND FOR OUR REDSKIN WARD.

Stout Braves Tilling in the Fields and on the Highroads of Reservation Become Self-Supporting Members of Society.

[Special Correspondence]
Rosebud Indian Agency, S. D., June 17.—The experiment of putting the Indians on the reservation to work has proved a success, much to the surprise of a number of people who declared that it could never have good results. So pleased is the government with the way the Sioux have developed as laborers that an extension of the scheme is already under way, and reservations all over the country will soon present the spectacle of industrious backs toiling in the fields. It is estimated that about 7 per cent of the total Indian population of the country is now a part of the wage earning community.

The method adopted to induce the Indians to go to work was simple in the extreme. The Indians on the Rosebud reservation were told that no more rations would be issued to any except those who were too old, infirm or sick to work. At first the Indians did not take the order as serious, but when their food began to run short they awoke to the realization that the great white father meant what he said. So they held a lengthy potlatch, which resulted in some of their number applying for work, much to the surprise of the squaws, who had hitherto borne the brunt of the labor on the reservation.

When the agent was approached by Red Feather, White Crow and Big Moon and requested to give them work, he could scarcely believe that the redmen were in earnest. However, he got out some spades, and they set out to dig a new road that had been surveyed so long it had become a standing joke at the agency. More Indians fell into line as they made their way to the scene of their prospective toil, and the agent soon had the pleasure of seeing the dirt fly in earnest.

Meantime word had spread through the surrounding country that the Indians had gathered at the agency and were making a threatening demonstration. Posthaste the palefaces hastened up in order to render assistance to the officials, and they, too, were stumped when they saw the unexpected sight. It was predicted that the newly found ardor of the reds would not last, but when they discovered that they were to be paid in good cash for their work they entered into the spirit of it with an ever increasing earnestness. The news was carried far by Indian runners, and in a short time a number of redskins from the Pine Ridge reservation swarmed down upon Rosebud with the demand that they, too, be given work. When they were told that there was nothing for them to do, they went away grumbling.

The Indian laborer receives as much consideration as does the white. He is paid at the rate of $1.25 a day, and his working day is of eight hours. Farmers are on hand to act as instructors as well as overseers. Most of the Indians on this reservation are engaged in building roads, bridges, reservoirs and fences, but some are at work upon the land allotted to them. While the Indian is proverbially averse to labor, he is as well acquainted as any one else of the value of American dollars, and the fact that he is paid in cash has done more to win him over to the new order of things than anything else possibly could.

The results of Indian labor as a factor in the economic problem cannot be estimated yet. Some of the white settlers are already growing at the alleged paternalism of the plan. Should the Indians ever begin to overproduce there will be of necessity an overflow into the open market, and the reds will then actually become competitors of the whites. At present, however, the officials are not worrying over this aspect of the situation, their one endeavor being to compel the Indians to become self-supporting.

LEONARD BALDWIN.

A CODE OF SIGNALS

[Original.]

People tell me that because I am thirty-eight, unmarried and wear spectacles I should not be interested in young lovers. Nevertheless I am interested in them and always expect to be. We live on a short block flanked by two long ones. From my bedroom window, in the rear, I can look out on the rear of two rows of houses opposite one another. This morning I saw a young man stand at a window of the seventh house to the left watching a window of the third house to the right. He was a beautiful and appealing fellow, and he waved his handkerchief to him.

I am not envious at all. My brother Bob says I am inordinately so, but I'm not. Nevertheless, it being plain that the wave of the handkerchief was a signal, a sign, a message or something of the kind, I naturally wondered what it could be. I wished that it had appeared later in the day, for I was obliged to keep watch at the window all the afternoon and evening for fear of missing the next message. Nothing appeared till after dark, when a candle was left burning on the sill of the young lady's window—I shall call this No. 3 and the other house No. 7—for half an hour. It went out suddenly, and I went to bed.

The first signal had passed about 9 o'clock. Therefore the next morning I began my watch a few minutes before 9. As the clock struck the hour the gentleman and the lady appeared at their respective windows. She looked troubled and held up a piece of pasteboard on which was written in large letters:

Tark at 11 p. m.

This was surely the time and place of an elopement. The man as soon as he saw the message looked serious, but an elopement is a serious matter, and I was not surprised that this young couple appreciated the importance of the step they were about to take. I did not expect any more messages, but for fear of missing one I kept my place at my window all day. After dark I was about to give it up when a red light was put in the girl's window.

That means that something has happened to prevent the elopement tonight. Red is a danger signal. I shall look anxiously for another cipher message in the morning.

I lay awake half the night wondering what had happened. I wished that I could help them. It might be they needed a confidant to make arrangements they could not make themselves. I resolved that if they did not carry out their plans the next day I would go into No. 3, call for the girl and offer my services. In the morning she held up a sign:

Tark 6, Haze O.

"They're going to try it again. They will meet at some place at 6 this evening designated by the word 'Tark.' But what does 'Haze O' mean? Why, that the danger which threatened them before has been eliminated. How stupid of me not to see it at once! Tonight will tell. I'm sure the window will show a light."

I was not mistaken. The window did show a light—not one, but two, and they were both red.

In the morning I awaited the cipher message anxiously. It came later than usual, and the poor girl looked dreadfully worried when she gave it. On the pasteboard were the words:

Tark 1.

The man, too, looked worried, but made a motion for the girl to wait. They disappeared from the window, he returned presently and held up a placard:

O. K. this end; tonight sure.

I could stand this no longer. Putting on my hat and wraps I went around the corner and rang the bell at No. 3. The girl who had been displaying cipher messages came to the door.

"May I speak with you a moment?" I asked.

"Certainly. Come in."

We went into a drawing room, and I mustered courage to open the delicate subject.

"Pardon me if I seem officious," I said, "but I have reason to believe that you have a gentleman who lives in one of the houses whose rear faces yours."

"Excuse me," she interrupted. "Have you had the measles?"

"The measles? Why, no. What has that to do with the matter?"

"Only that my two children are down with it, and if you should take it it might go hard with you. It always does with elderly people."

"And the signals?" I gasped.

"They were to keep my husband, who remained at home with our other children, informed. We took this house that we might separate the sick from the well."

Then she explained the signals. The smile and the handkerchief were mere encouragement; "Tark at 11 p. m." that their boy Tarkington, who had not surely shown the disease, had broken out at 11 p. m. The white and red lights were the only signals that could be given at night to say "better" or "worse." "Tark 6, Haze O," meant that, according to the scale agreed upon, Tarkington was doing well. Haze recovered; two red lights, Tarkington worse. "O. K. this end; tonight sure," meant that the children at home were well and a grandmother, who had been delayed, would arrive.

I retired disappointed.

Later—I have come down with a severe case of measles.

FORWOOD'S DARING ESCAPE

Incident of the New Surgeon General's Military Career.

The new surgeon general of the United States army has a long and distinguished military record, covering a period of more than forty years, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. His retirement will occur on Sept. 7, after only three months' service at his new post. General William H. Forwood is a native of Delaware. In 1861 he was appointed a surgeon in the regular army, and his service in the civil war was marked not only by his skill and devotion to his work, but by dash and gallantry that won the admiration of all those with whom he served.

One of the most interesting incidents in General Forwood's career was his capture by Mosby's men. It happened near Hartwood church when Surgeon Forwood, with the regimental commander, Captain Cram, and two orderlies, was riding to General Burford's quarters, a mile and a half distant from their camp. On the way they were suddenly surrounded by about thirty of Mosby's men, who seemed to spring upon them from the ground, and, with carbines cocked, compelled a surrender, since the little party of Unionists were not armed. The prisoners were conducted to a house some distance in the woods, the headquarters of the guerrillas evidently, and shortly after arriving there were released on parole after being deprived of their horses and equipment, and they started back to their camp. Surgeon Forwood, however, would not accept the parole, demanding to be released according to his rights as a medical officer. To this demand his captors paid no attention, and since he persisted in his refusal to sign the parole the young doctor was turned over to a guard to be sent to some interior prison.

The prisoner was placed on foot between mounted men in the front and rear, and in the middle of the night the procession started out. In passing through a dense forest of young pines Forwood broke away from his captors and made a dash for liberty, and, despite the fact that every effort was made to recapture him, succeeded in getting away unhurt by the hundreds of shots that were fired into the woods he traversed. After a perilous journey through the forest and across swamps and streams Surgeon Forwood found his way back to camp, where Captain Cram and the rest of the party had already arrived.

THUNDER MOUNTAIN ROAD.

Much Needed Thoroughfare to New El Dorado Soon to Be Built.

A Nampa (Ida.) letter in the Seattle Times says the vexed problem of a wagon road to the Thunder mountain mines, which has been agitating the minds of the people of the southern portion of Idaho ever since the New El Dorado was discovered, has been settled definitely, and active work on the road will shortly begin. Engineer J. M. Clark of the Idaho Northern and B. N. and O. railways has returned from a tour of inspection of the Nampa-Emmett route via Garden valley or Long valley, and E. H. Dewey, western manager of the Thunder Mountain Gold and Silver Mining company, has announced, as before intimated, that the wagon road will be built this way.

Colonel W. H. Dewey of Nampa, who purchased the original Thunder mountain ore discoveries from the Caswell brothers, has recently completed a new railroad from Nampa to Emmett, a distance of thirty miles, and it is from this terminus that the Thunder mountain wagon road will be built. The total distance from Emmett to the mines by this road will be 120 miles, going by way of Gold Fork. A stage line will be operated from Emmett.

On account of the enormous cost involved and the evident superiority of the route selected in the matter of distance and good roads this will probably be the only Thunder mountain wagon road from southern Idaho. Boise city will build up and connect with this road at Pen Basin, and Weaver and Council will build and connect with it at a point near Emmett.

Mr. D. S. Murray, manager of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, now has men in the field building a telephone line from Emmett to Thunder mountain. The great rush is expected to begin the first of July.

PELEE STOPPED THE GAME.

Lotto Was Being Played When Eruption Overwhelmed St. Pierre.

One of the places visited by the Dixie party on reaching the ruins of St. Pierre was the clubhouse, says the Washington Post. Here was a scene of desolation such as inspired the conqueror of Constantinople when he rode into St. Sophia over the piles of slain. The clubhouse interior was just as the inmates laid off it when the terrible rain of fire that destroyed St. Pierre came on.

The chips used in the game of lotto, a species of faro, popular throughout the West Indies, were lying about in stacks just as the players had left them when the city was destroyed. Mr. Robert Hill brought back quite a number of these chips, together with a large quantity of the volcanic pumice stone erupted by Mont Pelee.

Snapshot of the Shah.

The Shah of Persia is said to be enjoying himself hugely in Europe. He finds even the kodak fiend amusing and not long ago obligingly stood still when he saw a young American girl in Berlin trying to get a snapshot photograph. When the operation was completed, his majesty walked off, smiling and waving his hand.

ROYALTY TO VISIT US.

Many Princes Coming to the United States This Year.

FAMOUS CHINAMAN EXPECTED.

Prince Cheng Will Arrive in August. Grand Duke Boris of Russia Expected in July—Siam's Crown Prince Comes in September—King Menelik's Brother a Likely Visitor.

A year which has been memorable for international amenities will be rendered still more famous this summer and next fall, when several members of imperial houses will be entertained in the United States, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World.

The Grand Duke Boris, first cousin of the czar and younger son of the brother of Alexander III, the Grand Duke Vladimir, is scheduled to arrive in the United States in July. He is making a tour of the world and is now in India. He is not traveling incognito, but his visit is not official, and no state functions will be organized in his honor. On account of his near relationship to the czar, however, he will be accorded all the courtesy and formality possible at a season when the officials of Washington are scattered to the four corners of the earth.

Count Cassini has already informed Secretary Hay of the intentions of the imperial visitor. The secretary will be at his summer home at Lake Sunapee, N. H., and it will not be for him to receive the grand duke officially. Count Cassini has arranged, however, that the distinguished visitor shall pay his respects to the president at Oyster Bay. The ambassador has taken a handsome cottage at Bar Harbor, and some brilliant entertainments will be given there.

The grand duke will visit New York, Boston and Philadelphia, but it is not likely that he will go to Washington. He will land at San Francisco, where he will be met by Mr. Zelevony, second secretary of the Russian embassy. After spending a few days in the metropolis of the Pacific coast he will cross the continent, making leisurely stops in such cities as interest him.

The grand duke is not yet twenty-five years of age and is unmarried. He is a soldier by profession and is at present a member of the imperial guard and colonel of the Azoff regiment of infantry.

Prince Cheng, another expected visitor, is a brother of the emperor of China. He is famous through his association with Li Hung Chang in the negotiations at the time of the Boxer troubles and because he was the envoy selected to apologize to the emperor of Germany for the killing of Baron Ketteler. He added to the gaiety of nations by refusing to kowtow to the emperor of Germany upon his appearance at court. He based his refusal on the ground that the "kowtow" was an act of reverence reserved especially for his own emperor. William II. tried by every diplomatic method to overcome the scruples of the Chinese envoy without effect, and a ludicrous compromise was the result.

Prince Cheng is accompanied by a suit of ten persons, among whom are several distinguished Chinese statesmen and scholars. Prince Cheng will arrive in this country some time in August.

It is likely that a similar programme will be followed in entertaining these eminent Chinese visitors as during the recent visit of Prince Henry and of the French representatives to the Rochambeau celebration. A special delegation will be appointed by the secretary of state to receive them and to entertain them throughout their visit. It is expected that John W. Foster will be a member of this committee and probably W. W. Rockhill, both having acted in a similar capacity when Li Hung Chang made his tour of the United States. Prince Cheng will be entertained in Washington by the Chinese minister, although his dwelling will probably be either the Arlington or the New Willard. Mr. Wu has received no positive information concerning his plans except that he will come in August.

The crown prince of Siam, Prince Maha Dajirazueh, the third royal visitor, is making a tour of the world to study economic conditions. His father, King Chulalongkorn, is one of the most progressive rulers of the orient. He desires that his son when he ascends the throne of Siam shall be properly educated in order to elevate the civilization of his country and to bring it to a pass where it will be possible to meet the encroachments of western civilization on somewhat equal terms. The young prince is instructed to study those methods and qualities which make western nations superior in aggressive qualities to the orientals. The Siamese prince will come to this country some time in September. He will be received with all official formality and courtesy.

In addition it is learned at the British embassy many of the lesser rulers of India, rajahs and maharajahs, who are in London for the coronation will return to their native country via the United States and make stays of varying duration in the principal cities of the United States. It is also stated that the brother of King Menelik of Abyssinia will visit us before the new year.

New French Lighthouse.

The newest lighthouse on the French coast shows a beam visible at a distance of thirty-nine nautical miles in clear weather. It is situated on the Isle Verge, off the French coast, to the northeast of Eshant, the lighthouse being 241 feet above sea level.

KITCHENER AND THE BOERS

Three Stages Observed In the British Officer's South African Career.

A British officer, writing to relatives in the United States, just before the declaration of peace in South Africa, said:

"We who have been close to Lord Kitchener in this tedious struggle—that is, near to him in a physical sense, for no one gets close enough to him to get in touch with his thought—have observed three stages or moods in his South African career.

"When he came here, in answer to questions as to when the war would be ended, he would say, with confidence:

"When we have whipped the Boers."

"A year later the same question visibly annoyed him, and he would answer shortly:

"When the Boers learn that they've been whipped."

"But lately our commander, whose face expresses intolerable weariness, has changed the form of his reply to this continuous question and says:

"When we have found a feasible way to reconcile the Boers to being whipped."—New York Times.

ENGINEERS

ARE TO MEET NEXT YEAR AT AKRON, OHIO.

Successful Convention Comes to a Close—Election of Officers—Other Business Transacted.

The Stationary Engineers' convention was called to order promptly at 9 o'clock Friday morning by President Howle, and the first thing called for was the report of the committee on constitution, part of which was acted on Thursday afternoon.

Chairman Harmon of the committee read the part of the report which recommended the adoption of the resolution introduced by Akron Association 28, raising the salary of State Secretary from $12.50 to $100. A motion was made by Mr. McFarland to concur in the recommendation of the committee. Mr. Yeager amended the motion to cut the $100 in two and give the Secretary $50. The amendment was adopted and the salary was fixed at $50.

The committee recommended that the salary of State Treasurer be increased from $1 to $25. A motion to amend and fix the salary at $13 was made by Mr. Yeager, and carried.

A resolution introduced by the Co-shooton Association, to instruct delegates to the National Association to use all means to have the National constitution amended so as to exclude from membership, all colored members was read by Chairman Harmon. The committee did not concur in this resolution.

Mr. Yeager moved to concur, over the recommendation of the committee. Mr. Barber rose to a point of order, saying that this matter had been referred to each association for action. President Howle ruled Mr. Yeager's motion out of order, and to this ruling Mr. Yeager appealed. The appeal was sustained by a rising vote, but the roll call was demanded, and the chair ruled that all delegates absent would be counted as voting to sustain the chair. Mr. Yeager objected to this ruling. Mr. Yeager stated that the entire question was whether or not this association should or should not put itself on record as opposed to the membership of negroes. Mr. Yeager led the opposition to the chair's ruling, and in favor of the appeal. Those who voted with him, were in favor of excluding the negro from membership. The issue was plainly defined in the vote. Those voting to sustain the chair, were in favor of negro membership, those voting not to sustain were opposed to negro membership. During the taking of the vote on the appeal, Past National President Stone sat on the platform and coached President Howle.

Considerable feeling was displayed by both sides to the controversy, Chairman Howle, being plainly anxious that his ruling should be sustained. President Howle said that the color matter was now in the hands of the National committee, and it was on the advice of a National officer that he made the ruling, declaring any action taken now by the Ohio association out of order. The vote stood 12 to sustain and 12 not to sustain. The vice president cast the deciding vote, which was, of course, to sustain.

Chairman Harmon reported that the committee concurred in the resolution to give the State President $13 per year. Mr. Yeager moved that the convention should not concur in the committee's report. The motion was carried and the committee's report was rejected.

President Howle announced that immediately after adjournment, all delegates were requested to meet on the court house steps to have a group photograph taken.

The question of where the convention should meet next year was next called up.

Mr. J. A. McConahey placed Akron before the convention in a short speech, in which he urged Akron's ease of railroad communication and the well known hospitality of Akron's citizens.

F. H. Yeager placed the name of Cincinnati before the convention. Mr. Yeager said however, that he had talked with the Akron people, who had agreed to support a Cincinnati man for state vice president. If the convention would elect a Cincinnati man for state vice president, he would withdraw that city's name.

Mr. Yeager withdrew the name of Cincinnati in favor of Akron, and moved that Akron be the next meeting place, which was unanimously agreed to, and the next state convention will be held in that city.

The committee on Ways and Means reported by its chairman, that the proposition of the Artisan Publishing company to furnish the Artisan to every member of the State association for 25 cents per year, and publish free of charge all proceedings of the N. A. S. E. of Ohio, was not recommended favorably by the committee. The proposition virtually made the Artisan the official organ for Ohio, which in the minds of many superseded the National Engineer of Chicago, which is the recognized official organ of the order, according to the bylaws and constitution.

Mr. Mulford, representing the Artisan, was granted the floor for five minutes to explain his position. It was decided that the Artisan and Mr. Mulford should be given the individual support of the members, but the state association voted to concur in the report of the committee, rejecting the Artisan's proposition. The Engineer this year refused to publish the proceedings of the last state convention of Ohio, without charge.

R. G. Engleson, National Vice President, said that the Board of Trustees of "The Engineer" had betrayed the power and trust conferred upon them by the National Association and that he was sure that the next National convention would "put fire under them," and compel these men to perform those duties for which they were placed in the positions they held.

Nominations for state officers were called for. Delegate Dietrichs nominated for president, J. H. McConahey, of Akron. This was seconded by delegate Yeager. Mr. Barber nominated Jos Howle, who declined. The nominations were declared closed. For Vice President, Mr. McConahey nominated Michael Rober of Cincinnati. Mr. Barber seconded Mr. Rober's nomination.

R. A. Orin of East Liverpool, the present secretary, was renominated and A. W. Phillips of Wellsville, present treasurer was re-nominated.

For Doorkeeper, the name of Ernest S. Webber of Canal Dover, Charles Ward of Cleveland, H. C. Fashbaugh of Canton were placed in nomination.

The election resulted as follows: President, J. H. McConahey of Akron.

Vice President, Michael Rober, of Cincinnati.

Secretary, Robert A. Orin, East Liverpool.

Treasurer, A. W. Phillips, Wellsville.

Conductor, J. A. McFarland, Newark.

Doorkeeper, C. M. Ward, Cleveland.

16; E. S. Webber, Wellsville, 9; H. C. Fashbaugh, Canton 4.

The officers who were elected were installed by National Vice President R. G. Ingleson of Cleveland, who is also State Deputy.

Mr. Yeager of Cincinnati, moved that a committee be appointed to draft and present to all past presidents a suitable emblem, the custom to be perpetuated. The motion was carried.

President McConahey appointed the following standing committees for the ensuing year:

License—G. W. Barr, Warren; Geo. A. Barbee, Cleveland; W. S. Roberts, Marietta.

Past Presidents' Jewel—E. F. Dietrichs, E. E. Hill, Cleveland; E. R. Booker, Ashtabula.

A vote of thanks was extended Mr. Mulford of the Artisan.

A vote of thanks was tendered the license committee and the retiring state officers.

Mr. Barbee moved that a vote of thanks be tendered to Mayor Forry, the local committee, the press and citizens in general, for courtesies extended during the convention. Carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks was extended to A. E. Ward of Elmwood, Cincinnati, for past work on the license committee.

After remarks by Mr. G. M. Collier of Cleveland, chief examiner of stationary engineers for Ohio; George A. Barbee of Columbus, and Delegation Yeager of Cincinnati, the convention adjourned to meet in Akron in 1903. Thursday evening the visiting delegates were given a fine banquet in A. O. U. W. hall on the South Side, at which remarks were made by State and National officers, and various delegates and visitors.

Mr. J. A. McFarland the new state conductor, is one of Newark's substantial citizens and careful conscientious engineers. He is employed as engineer at the Siles & Kellenberger mill and all who know him hold him in high esteem. To his untiring energy as chairman of the local committee, is due much of the success of the Sixth Annual Convention and the comfort and pleasure of the delegates. The convention could not have found more a worthy member than Mr. McFarland on whom to have conferred the honor of a state officer.

To Mr. Joseph Ebright, state examiner of engineers, a good share of credit is due for getting the state convention for Newark, and for Mr. McFarland's election.

STATE EXAMINER.

Joseph H. Ebright, State Examiner of Stationary Engineers, is in attendance at the convention as delegate from N. A. S. E. No. 49 of Zanesville. The boys all express regret at losing him as their chief examiner for this county, which is due to the redistricting of the state. He has made a splendid officer, being exact and uniform in all the duties of the office. This county has been added to District No. 3 of Columbus, under E. H. Harman. In losing Mr. Ebright, while we all express regret, yet we feel that Mr. Harman will prove eminently satisfactory to all.

Master Dickey Dawdle-so

Called in ample time each morn.
Stops to dream, to stretch and yawn;
Late to breakfast, then, of course,
Mamma grieved and Dickey-crocs.

Dawdles over mealtime then.
Late at school, perhaps, again;
So it goes on day by day.
"Yes," this a shuffling way?
Gentle grandma says, "Don't fret;
Master Dick is little yet."

As the twig's bent so 'twill grow,
Only stouter, stronger, so
Dickey now on his way's most mind
Else he'll always be behind;
Late at home, at school, at work,
Dangers in these days dreams lurk.

Master Dick, so I've been told,
Means to be a soldier bold.
Here's a chance for him to start;
Join the ranks with stoutest heart;
Loose these chains that bind him fast
Ere another day is past.

Fight this giant Dawdle-so
Fore these habits stronger grow;
What's to do, do with a will.
Striving each day harder still,
Then we'll celebrate in rhyme

MISTOOK HIS MAN.

A Cautious American Tourist and His Traveling Companion.

A cautious American traveling from Paris to Nice some years ago found a stranger in the compartment in which he had secured a berth.

"Are you Mr. —?" said the stranger. The American in surprise answered affirmatively.

"Ha," said the stranger. "I inquired at the booking office who was to be my traveling companion."

The American realized that this was no ordinary man and soon found him self almost hypnotized by the stranger's commanding eye.

When the man proposed cards, the American suspected that he was a professional gambler. He made many excuses, finally saying that he cared for none of the games which his companion suggested.

"All right," was the discomfiting reply; "we'll play anything you like."

When the American mentioned an obscure-French game, which he hoped the other would not know, and found his suggestion taken up eagerly, he was more than ever suspicious.

"But," asked the American, "do you know how to play it?"

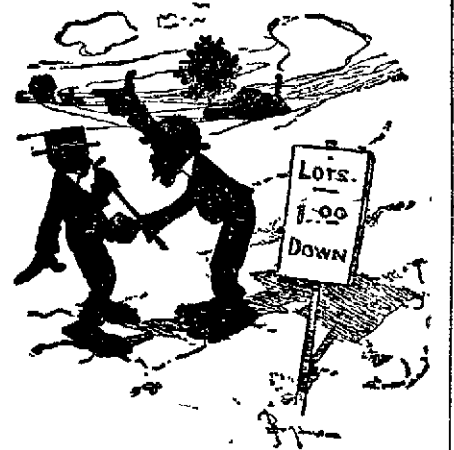

"No," was the reply, "but you can teach me."

The American now had little doubt that the man was a card expert, looking for a victim, but, as no suggestion of high stakes was made, he concluded to venture and after some hours' play had seen nothing on the part of his fellow passenger that looked like cheating.

But when next morning his companion suggested that they play again to while away the time the American grew suspicious again and pleaded a headache.

When they entered the station at Nice, the man handed the American his card. It bore the name of Lord Russell of Killowen, lord chief justice of England—Youth's Companion.

REMINISCENCE

Former Resident of Alexandria Returns to the Village of His Youth and Meditates.

(Communicated.)

Like as not it was just as well for Ben Bolt that Sweet Alice did not live to welcome him back, but lay sleeping under a stone in the old church yard. It would have hurt him less, to think of the bright young boys and the gentle sweet girl companions of his salad days than to learn from the cold casual greeting of some common-place inhabitant of the village who told him the destiny of many of them, that a dream of his boyhood was to be taken away from him. It would have been just as well for him if he had never returned to the hamlet which he quitted for good, forty-six years before. At least he would not have parted company with dreams that had been a life-long comfort to him; would not then have traded a pleasant and haunting memory for a chill regret.

Sometimes it is best not to try and realize one's dreams. It is wholesome, maybe, for a man to return after many years to a community which he left for his battle with the great world, but he is apt to have had knocks enough in the arena where men give and take without exposing himself when he leaves the firing line to wounds "in the home of his friends." Certain cherished illusions in the mind of the man who goes back are bound to die like golden butterflies bitten by the frost—they were things of the bright day and the warm sun, and cold kills them. Every man, however old, has kept a place in his heart where abide his recollections of his native town, and the place is young and fresh as a glade over which the soft April sun has passed. He runs a sad risk of having the youth of him chilled and withered when he takes the pilgrims staff and scrip and starts on his sentimental journey homeward. It is saddening and disheartening to go back; maybe, just maybe, it is salutary, nevertheless. If the good people of the village whither the wanderer returns knew how much he prized it, perhaps they would simulate warmth of greeting, even though they felt it not. Perhaps it is just their calm way, and they are really glad to see him. But he is so vastly glad to be back once more, that it hurts him to have them seem so indifferent. The visit means so much to him. It has been looked forward to so long; it has so woven itself into his daydreams and the fantasies of his pillow, that he is disposed to be unreasonable, though he knows it not, in his demands on their affections. He cannot understand that his is an event of such small importance to them. Truly the village has changed from the fancy of him who went forth from it a lad, and comes back a man. He knew, despite a stately recollection, that he would find the streets narrow and the houses squat, and half suspected and expected changes, but he did not count on the people having changed also. On the public square he looked to see the little village school house, then unpainted, with its one small room, where he first learned his A B C's and where he used to play "haley over" ball over its roof, or "crack the whip" upon its grounds, and upon the same square stood the old white frame M. E. church, with its two front doors, where many and many times his father and mother took him with them to worship—they were members of that church. But, behold! they were not there. In their stead stood finer, nobler buildings of modern styles. But the old Baptist church still stands, with its many steps leading up into it, and with its once, to him, seemingly very high steeple containing its large bell, that so many times he had heard. Sometimes it told of deaths and age of some member or citizen by tolling. Elder Lamb, that fine noble man, was the minister when the writer of this was a boy, and one incident relating to the church. In those days literary societies were sometimes held in this church, and on one occasion, at one of these church entertainments, a violin was used, and as an eccentric individual of the village in passing heard the violin, stopped, turning first one ear and then his other one to be sure he heard aright—suddenly exclaimed, "God! A fiddle in a church," evidently thinking it awful. These changes he sees to what cuts him, and makes him say to himself, how many years it has been since he went away, rather than the yesterday it seemed.

Other families are prominent in the community now. Strange faces pass him on the street and seem so much at ease they make him almost jealous with the dreary jealousy of a child sees a strange child made welcome in his father's home. Even from the pang of these things, the visitor may at least school himself to calmness, but not from the pang of friends absent, gone, the boy comrades, the ones that he used to say to, "Let's have a game of ball," "Rufus B.—you being 'Old Jerry.'" So well do I remember that black, wooly, good natured dog, that would run after the ball and bring it to us, and Henry R., you get your bat, and tell your sister Emmie to get gentle Mary W. (both these have long ago crossed over the dark river.) Annie G. and Dorothy T. and all the other girls she should meet, to come and watch us play, and we will have lots of fun. Now this is only as yesterday, member, but stop! Let me think—why both those noble boys gave their lives to their country nearly forty years ago, and are now numbered with the ages. And I've been carried back in fancy, till I was a boy again. Though already I have lived out more than three score years; I am visiting the homestead where my boyish feet once trod. Though the loved ones who once lived there long have lain beneath the sod. How my memory calls up pictures of those days so long ago. While I loiter round the homestead slowly pacing to and fro. There the woods where I went nutting, in that field I went to play. Every day so full was crowded, sometimes work and sometimes play. Can it be it has been longer? Only yesterday it seems. Yet my hair is silvered thickly, these things now are only dreams. Those I knew as little children, prattling round their mothers knee, Now I find as men and women, and their children grown I see! Some who were once were friends and neighbors, heavy-headed now have grown. Many more have crossed the river, passing to the great unknown. Years are coming, years are going, each more swiftly than the last. Till we reach the latest evening and the whole of life be past. Then beyond lie many mansions, mansions not prepared with hands. Where we meet and greet our loved ones, in those fair celestial lands. Day by day the way grows brighter, as I near life's setting sun. May I, after years of labor, hear the welcome words, "Well Done!" Fare thee well, Alexandria, farewell, you little village of my birth, I now leave thee, perhaps, forever, village of my youth. Returning to my faraway southern home. Carrying with me, both glad and sad. Memories of my old village home. Fare thee well, old Alex, dear, goodbye.

A Sure Thing.

A tattered, forlorn miss of fifteen, summers entered the office of a young real estate man the other day. Ordinarily he is the politest of individuals, but this day he was so busy that he didn't know "where he was at." So, with a swift glance out of the corner of his eye, he said rather sharply: "Well, what do you want?" "P-p-p-lease, mister, won't you buy a ticket on our cuckoo clock?" replied the girl hesitatingly.

"Buy a ticket on your cuckoo clock? What the deuce would I do with a cuckoo clock even if I should get it?" "Oh, you won't get it, mister. Please buy a ticket." He bought.—Kansas City Independent. ## FRAZEYSBURG MAN

SAYS FOOTPADS ROBBED HIM IN COLUMBUS.

Story of an Assault and Theft Told by a Man With Two Watches Left.

(Columbus Press.)

T. M. Garrett, of Frazeysburg, came to Columbus Wednesday morning and about 2 o'clock Thursday morning had a very unpleasant and sensational experience.

A railroad brakeman came to the city with Garrett, and, after taking in other places of note, they called at the Cooper lodging house, at Chestnut and High.

Garrett, who says he did not like the looks of the place, left and was waiting on the corner for Sawyer, when two men came around from Chestnut street and remarked to him that he was liable to be arrested for loitering.

The two men stopped in front of the restaurant just south of Chestnut street and began counting a large roll of money. Finally they approached Garrett and offered him a part of the money. At the same time one of them said that they had just robbed a man, and asked him to say nothing about it.

Garrett says he told the men he had money of his own and did not want any from them. Just as he said this the smaller of the two men, according to his story, struck him in the mouth, knocking him down. Both men jumped onto him and during the scuffle they went through his pockets, relieving him of $30.

Garrett was held at the police station. He was covered with mud and his mouth was badly swollen where he had been struck by the footpad. When searched two watches and $1.50 in money were found.

Oratory or Word Painting.

I have traveled from the vine-clad hills of Maine to where the meek-eyed maidens of the South bathe their tiny feet in the Gulf of Mexico; from the raging and rolling Atlantic to where the placid Pacific sweeps our Western shore. I have stood upon the most pinnacle of Pike's Peak and seen the eagles soaring high below. I have visited all the natural curiosities of the old world and the new, such as the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky and the Natural Bridge of Virginia; I have climbed the Matterhorn and trod on India's coral strands; but in all my travels I have never seen a preparation to equal Prune Laxative and firmly believe that Nature's store house has never yielded to suffering mankind a more remarkable or more beneficial remedy; but as an assertion without a demonstration is not always convincing—buy a bottle and try it. ### HINTS FOR FARMERS

Feeding Young Pigs.

The young pigs at three or four weeks old will begin to nose around the trough where the old ones are feeding and try to pick up a little corn or mash as it gets thrown out. Then is the time to prepare them a trough by themselves that they may reach by going through a hole not large enough for the old ones to get through. In this put skim milk or a little warm fresh milk, and if one has his nose poked into it the sound of his eating will quickly bring the others to see what he has found. After a few days make a slop thin enough to pour well of two parts of shorts and one part of bran, mixing with warm water, and for a few days add a little milk. Try not to give more than they will eat clean, and if there is any left give it to the old ones. Feed only when the old ones are fed until they are weaned, and then three times a day until they weigh about 100 pounds, when twice a day will be often enough. A pig ground oats might be better when oats did not cost as much more than bran as they do now. Do not crowd them with too much or too hearty food, but about a month before killing one-half cornmeal and one-half shorts will serve to make the meat firmer and add fat rapidly. Keep a lookout for the scours and give a little charcoal to assist digestion.—American Cultivator.

THE CROPS

General Summary of Conditions for the Past Week—Harvest Begun, in Some States.

The Climate and Crop Bulletin for the United States, week ending Monday, gives the following summary:

Corn has made rapid growth in Nebraska, Missouri, Indiana and in portions of Illinois and Iowa, and is much improved in Ohio. Portions of Iowa and Northern Illinois the crop has suffered from heavy rains, and in Wisconsin and Michigan both from excessive moisture and low temperatures. In Kentucky, Tennessee, and generally throughout the Middle and South Atlantic states corn is doing well, but is suffering seriously from drought in the central and west Gulf states, and is being cut for fodder in portions of Texas.

Winter wheat has made generally favorable progress during the past week, further improvement being reported from the Ohio Valley and Lake region. In Northern Illinois the crop has suffered to some extent from the heavy rains and much lodging on rich soil is reported from Wisconsin. Harvest has begun in Kansas and Southern Illinois, has progressed under favorable conditions in Missouri is about finished in the Carolinas and Tennessee, and wheat is ripening in Southern Nebraska, with very promising outlook. Winter wheat continues in promising condition in Washington and Oregon, and a good crop is being harvested in Northern and Central California.

Spring wheat has been damaged in flooded valleys in portions of Iowa, but doing well in the dryer portions of the state, and some of the late sown in Southern Dakota is weedy. With these exceptions the crop is in excellent condition throughout the spring wheat region.

The Ohio report says: Weather favorable, except damage by storms in central and northern portions; wheat improved slightly, some rust reported; corn, potatoes, gardens, oats, pastures and tobacco much improved; barley ripening; cover cutting begun, crop only fair; timothy and meadows improved, but light; apples dropping and less promising; some peaches near lake.

FATHER

Of Mrs. Vanatta of Newark Dies at Mt. Vernon at the Age of 85 Years.

(Mt. Vernon Banner.)

David Parrott, one of the best known farmers of Knox county, died at five o'clock Wednesday evening at his home south of Mt. Vernon on the Newark road. His death was due to paralysis. He was in the best of health up until last Sunday when he was seized with paralysis. He never rallied and continued to grow rapidly worse until death occurred at the hour mentioned above. He was 85 years of age and was born in Bedford county, Pennsylvania, and at the age of ten years he removed with his parents to Knox county. He received a common school education and was reared a farmer. On April 4, 1844, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Davidson. Her death occurred many years ago. He is survived by three children, Miss Eva and Clarence of Mt. Vernon and Mrs. Vanatta of Newark.

PARASOLS AND BOAS.

Kandies Set With Precious Stones, Chiffon Ribbons.

The new parasols are even prettier than those of last season. Many show borders of black velvet, while others are masses of tiny chiffon ruffles edged with fine lace. The handles are very rich. The favorite is a plain stick, with one large stone set in or an initial worked in brilliant. The all white or cream parasol is no doubt the most useful, and women should be

IRISH LACE WAIST.

Careful in buying a parasol to choose one covered with a material which will not crumble and look passe after it has been used a few times.

Hats are growing larger and larger. They are also just as flat as formerly. All over Irish lace is much used for waists.

The new chiffon boas are flat on the shoulders, with a cape effect. Many of them resemble fichus. The hand-somest are thickly sewed with flower petals. They are expensive and perishable and therefore not for the woman with a small dress allowance.

A smart little blouse of all over Irish lace is shown in the cut. It is made in the shape of a bolero, falling over a crushed belt of satin. There is a fitted collar over the shoulders, and from under this two ends of chiffon start and are brought together in a big bow down the front. The sleeves are large and have full puffs gathered into cuffs of lace. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SUMMER EVENING GOWNS.

They Are Made With Excessively Long, trailing Skirts.

The summer evening gowns are models of grace and elegance. They are made with excessively long trains and fronds and sides which more than touch the ground. This long style of skirt is almost universally becoming, as it tends to lessen whatever defects there may be in the figure.

Floral garnitures are a striking feature of nearly all the smart evening dresses. The garniture may range from a simple bunch of artificial violets smothered among loops of chiffon to a long, trailing branch of flowers reaching from the shoulder to the bottom of the skirt.

Tiny rosebuds are intermingled with puffs of pale pink chiffon, and they are used all over a gown after the manner of insertion.

Flowers appliqued flat are no longer the style. There must be a raised effect in the shape of petals or heavy embroidery.

The favorite combination is still the low neck with the short elbow sleeve.

A smart evening gown for summer hops is here shown. The material is white dotted chiffon, with the upper half of all over ecru lace touched here and there with a faint tracery of black embroidery. The elbow sleeves consist of three straps of lace and a lace and chiffon ruffle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Coming Week Will Witness Her Sev-enty-Fifth Anniversary—Big Events Scheduled.

(Communicated)
The coming week will be one of unusual interest to the many friends and patrons of Kenyon College at Gambier. Few institutions in our land can boast of so many distinguished alumni. Among these we might mention, ex-President Hayes, Chief Justice Waite, Judge Stanley Matthews, Hon. Henry Winter Davis, Salmon P. Chase, Chief Justice of the United States, Edwin M. Stanton, Lincoln's great war secretary, Judge Noah Davis, of Illinois, and many others. The coming commencement will be the anniversary of its seventy-fifth birthday. Very imposing ceremonies will take place among them the laying of the cornerstone of the new Hanna Hall. The D. K. E. fraternity will also celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a banquet and other exercises. Many distinguished alumni from various parts of our country will be present. Hon. Whitelaw Reid, our present ambassador to England at the coronation of King Edward, is a member of the D. K. E. fraternity, and had he not been sent abroad on this mission would have been present. Hon. M. A. Hanna will be present and no doubt will make the occasion memorable by his great personal magnetism. Many other distinguished men will be present to make the occasion the most memorable in its history.

The standard of Kenyon College is very high, ranking with Yale, Harvard and Princeton. Under its present management its star is in the ascendancy, and a bright future is now in store for this grand old institution of learning. C. P. K.

SPEECH

tion drawn that many Republicans were with the Democrats in opposition to the Administration in its Philippine policy.

Continuing there was criticism of Roosevelt for assuming too much in a country where free institutions prevailed.

The ex-Senator then took up the subject of Cuba, dealing first with the administration of General Wood, whom he bitterly arraigned. The use of money "for partisan and lobbying purposes in aid of administrative measures pending before Congress," he declared, "served to emphasize the irresponsible and dangerous character of arbitrary military rule anywhere, whether temporary or permanent."

"The subject, he went on, "demands the investigation of Congress and the prompt punishment of the offending official, if he can be reached through criminal or military law."

"The history of the country does not furnish a more flagrant breach of official duty, as well as official propriety than that presented by the misconduct of Wood. Yet he has neither been arrested nor rebuked nor censured, nor called to account by the Administration, but public attention to the scandal was sought to be diverted by the sudden interposition of a special message to Congress imperiously demanding the passage of a miserable compromise 'twenty per cent' measure of 'Justice to Cuba.'"

The Republican party was next arraigned for its position on the tariff, after which he said:

"Let the injustice be wholly and substantially righted, not by piecemeal legislation, but a complete and comprehensive measure based upon sound Democratic principles and along right lines."

"A 'reciprocity' measure is a misnomer which does not contemplate at least 50 per cent reduction of the existing tariff burdens. When the people of Cuba are asking for bread, we should not offer them a stone."

He spoke of the tariff as a promoter of trusts, and declared that the Government's recent proceedings against the beef and other trusts were a farce. Courts would soon adjourn for the summer without rendering decisions in the matter and the high prices would remain with no present means of relief therefrom. That relief was to be obtained only by the removal of the tariff on all productions controlled by the trusts.

Upon the subject of "Democratic Unity," he said:

"There is substantial accord among the Democrats of the country upon all the timely issues which are now engrossing public attention." These included liberty wherever the flag floats, taxation for public purposes only, free dom of commerce, true reciprocity and opposition to trusts, adding that "V" all stand where Jackson, Benton and Tilden stood in favor of hard money as opposed to irredeemable paper currency." The party, also he said, recognized the dignity of labor, opposed a large standing army and favored election of United States Senators by the people. The remainder of his speech was devoted to state issues.

Mr. Hill was followed by Governor Montague of Virginia and the speech making was closed by Thomas Taggart of Indiana. The winner followed the addresses.

Switching Under New System.

The per diem system of car charging which is to be put in effect July 1, is occupying the time of the freight departments of the various railroads interested. At a meeting of officials of the Pittsburg roads the important question of the application of the new method to the switching lines was settled.

The switching companies are to be allowed four days' reclaim on each car handled. Thus a switching company will be compelled to pay 20 cents per day for each car delivered to it, but if a car is returned within the four days the company will be allowed 20 cents per day for the balance of the four days allowed for unloading and returning to the delivering railway. If the switching company returns a car within one day after receiving it, the delivering railway will pay the switching company 80 cents rebate, or reclaim. For each day over the four days that the car is detained the switching company must pay 20 cents to the delivering company, and if the car is detained over 20 days, a rate of $1 per day is charged.

The new rule will apply in all territory over which the Pittsburg Car Service Association has jurisdiction.

B. &amp; O. EXCURSIONS

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the Civil War, 1861-1865.

It was the first and most desirable point of vantage coveted by both the Federal and Confederate armies. In May, 1861, the four Federal advance columns concentrated at Parkersburg, W. Va., Wheeling, W. Va., Harper's Ferry, W. Va., and at Washington. To retain the advantage, the Federal Government established block houses along the railroad from the Monocacy to the Ohio river, besides forts at Winchester, Harper's Ferry, Cumberland, Piedmont and New Creek (Keyser). The B. & O. was the base of operations for the Federal army for nearly four years and from which the government could not take advance line earlier than November 1864. The B. & O. was the means of communication between the West and the Army of the Potomac, and was consequently in a continual state of siege. Harper's Ferry, the key to the Shenandoah Valley, first famed through the fanciful attempt of John Brown, in defying the laws and customs of his country, was captured and recaptured eight times in three years. The Government Arsenal and armories which were located there, were destroyed by the government to prevent their capture. One hundred and seventy-nine battles of greater or less importance were fought on or adjacent to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, not taking into consideration the innumerable skirmishes.

All through trains from St. Louis, Louisville, Cincinnati, Chicago, Columbus, Cleveland, Wheeling and Pittsburgh to the East, run via Washington.

Excursion tickets are sold every Sunday between all local stations west of the Ohio river on the Baltimore & Ohio at rate of one fare for the round trip, good going and returning on date of sale only.

FOURTH OF JULY.—On July 3, and 4 the Baltimore and Ohio railroad Co. will sell excursion tickets to and from all local stations within a radius of 200 miles at one fare for the round trip; good for return until July 7, 1902.

Tickets good for return only on special train leaving Cincinnati at 7:00 p. m. same date. Base Ball game, Cincinnati vs. St. Louis.

Baked Milk.

When offering food and drink to the invalid, one should avoid things very sweet and very sour, as they are often very hurtful to weak stomachs. Most sick people can take milk, but in many cases it is not well to give it raw. Baked milk is good and may be taken fearlessly into the most delicate stomach. To prepare this properly put two quarts of fresh sweet milk in a jar covered with white writing paper, tightly tied down, and bake it in an oven moderately hot until thick as cream, which will take about eight or ten hours. A less quantity will not require so long.—St. Louis Republic.

A Wall Street Story

(Original)

Mary Walker came of age in 1898. She was heir to a fortune of $500, which had been left in trust for her to Zebulon Walker, her father's brother. Zebulon was a skindint, and the fact that he was very rich did not deter him from a disposition to keep Mary's little fortune. The day she came of age he said to her:

"Mary, the money your father left you is now due you. But what are you going to do with it? You can't live on the interest of so little, and you know nothing about investments. You had better leave it in my hands. I will invest it for you and may be able to increase it."

Mary, who had every confidence in her uncle, acted on his suggestion. Zebulon did not invite the orphan to share his home. On the contrary, he told her that she had better earn her living by sewing, and Mary consented to this also. The wily Zebulon took her receipt for the $500, which the law required him to pay over to her, and Mary's future was well laid out for drudgery.

Mary was doing some sewing in the house of a Mrs. Peabody, who took a fancy to her, and while talking with her one day learned that she was the possessor of a fortune of $500 in the hands of her uncle, for which she had no receipt. Her criticisms on Mary's loose way of doing business frightened the girl, and she wrote her uncle to let her know how the money was invested.

Zebulon upon receipt of the letter looked over the list of railroad stocks and, noting one of the most worthless, wrote Mary that her money was invested in the common stock of the road. This was very sharp of the old scoundrel, for if he told her that it was invested in a good stock she might claim the security.

Mary showed his reply to Mrs. Peabody, and the lady showed it to her husband. His advice was for Mary to ask her uncle how many shares he had purchased. This Mary did and received a reply that he had purchased ten shares of a par value of $500. This reply was also shown to Mary's adviser.

"My dear," said Mr. Peabody, "tell Mary to write him that her money is sufficient to purchase a large number of his shares, which are now selling very low, and request him to buy all that can be bought on a margin." If Mary makes a loss, I will make it good to her."

Mary's next letter to her uncle was a surprise to him. He knew that some one was advising her and thought he saw in the advice given a way for him to report his money lost. The stock in question had made a slight advance in price. In the fluctuations common in these stocks it would doubtless soon fall a few points, which would wipe out Mary's fortune entirely. He therefore wrote her that he had bought 1,000 shares at 20 on 5 per cent margin. If the price of the stock should fall one point, the legacy would be wiped out. Mary showed the letter to Mr. Peabody, who told her to keep it in a safe place.

The day after its receipt there was an advance of two points in the stock. Then it fell off one point, fluctuating slightly for a few weeks, when the matter was forgotten by Mary, and if Zebulon Walker had not forgotten it he thought very little of it, feeling sure that sooner or later there would be a panic on the market and the $500 would disappear as a claim against him and be added to his personal bank account.

Two years passed. Mary had fallen in love with a young man who, though industrious, was as poor as she. He had a position which paid him $15 a week and urged Mary to marry him. She consented, provided they could furnish a few rooms. Then she thought of her $500 and made up her mind to write her uncle, asking him to send her the money, or what there was left of it, if any. She did so and by return mail received a check for the $500, with interest at 6 per cent for two years, and a receipt for her to sign.

Mary was delighted. She signed the receipt, inclosed it in a letter to her uncle and went out to post it. On the way she thought of the stock that had been purchased with Mr. Peabody's advice. Then it occurred to her to go to Mr. Peabody, since he had been kind to her, and tell him what had occurred. It was shortly before dinner, and she found him at home.

Mr. Peabody had for a long while been a very busy man. He was an attorney for corporations, and corporations had had a great deal for him to do. When Mary came in, he had forgotten her. She recalled the transaction in stocks, whereupon a light broke in on his memory. Mary showed him her uncle's check and the receipt she had signed.

"Have you the letter notifying you of the purchase of the stock?" he asked.

"Yes."

Without reply he tore the receipt in pieces, then took out a pencil and began to make a calculation.

"Mary," he said presently, "you are worth $34,000."

"What a lot!"

"I sold my stock today in the road your money is invested in at 63. Your thousand shares at that price would bring $34,000, but the interest would not be less than $800. You are in luck."

The next day Mrs. Peabody went to Zebulon Walker as Mary's attorney and in a few days got an accounting.

"My dear," said Mr. Peabody to her husband, "how could you have advised Mary as you did?"

"I was attorney for the road and knew that it was coining money."

Carefully Prepared Census Now Being Taken and Advocate Readers Have An Opportunity

To Secure a Little Money Without Effort and Without Expense—The Only Condition is Each Guess Must be Accompanied by Paid in Advance Subscription to the Daily Advocate for Five Weeks.

The sum of Two Hundred Dollars in Gold has been deposited in the bank to the Advocate's credit for free distribution among the readers of the Daily Advocate upon conditions which will permit every subscriber to participate.

This money will be given in thirty-five prizes to those who will do a little figuring and place the result of their calculations on a coupon clipped from the Advocate and deposit it at this office with a paid in advance subscription to the Daily Advocate for five weeks. In other words any subscriber may take part in the contest and free distribution of prizes by paying five weeks in advance for the paper, (all arrearsages must first be settled) or any new subscriber may send his estimate to this office by paying 50 cents, for which sum the Daily Advocate will be sent to any address in the city of the United States for a period of five weeks.

ONE MAY GUESS AS OFTEN AS HE CHOOSES providing each guess or estimate is accompanied by 50 cents for five weeks' subscription to the paper.

Now as to the nature of the contest:

The Advocate has several reputable persons engaged in taking the census of Newark. The work is being done with greater accuracy and more care than was the official census of 1900. Every building in the city (none beyond the corporation lines) is being visited and a careful record is being made of the names and number of the dwellers in each building. The work is being done by experienced census takers and under the system employed nobody can escape and none can be duplicated. The result will show the exact population of Newark on June 1, 1902.

In 1890 Newark had a population of 14,289, and the official census of 1900 showed that there were 18,157 people living in Newark two years ago. WHAT IS THE POPULATION OF THIS THRIVING LITTLE CITY TODAY? Here is a pointer that will help you to arrive at an intelligent conclusion. The school enumerators have just reported that there are 5,070 school youth between the ages of 6 and 21 year living in Newark.

The census taking is being done without collusion among the enumerators, who each report to a gentleman in another city who makes a specialty of just such work as this. No person in the Advocate office will see any report or will know any more about the result than any reader of the paper until the time for distribution of the fund, but to guard against what might appear to be partiality, a rule has been established that no employee of the Advocate Company can participate in the contest directly or indirectly.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES.

This is what is wanted:

Send your estimate of what the population of Newark was on June 1, 1902 (men, women and children included) with 50 cents to the Advocate Printing Company, Newark, Ohio, not later than 12 o'clock noon, August 16, 1902. The estimate must be made on a coupon clipped from the Advocate, and be mailed or left at the Advocate counting room with remittance for which the paper will be sent to any address designated. Before any old subscriber can participate in the contest all indebtedness for past subscription must be paid.

This contest is started primarily to stimulate the interest of our people in the growth of our popular little city, more intimately familiarize them with its progress and prosperity, and at the same time provide an interesting and intellectual contest in which every one has an equal opportunity to secure one of 35 cash prizes, and by which the paper may be introduced into new homes.

The Advocate is the best and most popular paper in Newark and once a subscriber in nine of ten cases, always a subscriber. The Advocate gives special attention to the home news, to Licking county news, and Ohio news, with special correspondence from many points and the telegraph service of the Scripps McRae Press Association. ## STORY OF DEAN HOFFMAN.

How America's Richest Clergyman Subdued a Furious Drunkard.

The late Very Rev. Eugene Augustus Hoffman, D. D., LL. D., D. C. L., dean of the General Theological seminary, was the richest as well as one of the most distinguished of modern churchmen.

The fortune of the dean, even after his numerous benefactions to the seminary and other establishments, is said to amount to $15,000,000.

Dr. Hoffman's house to house visitations were such a noteworthy feature of his work as long as he served the churches that his parishioners felt free to call upon him in every sort of emergency, says the Washington Star. Thus at Elizabeth a little girl rushed into his study one day crying:

"Mother hopes you'll come to the house right away, sir. Father says he's going to kill her."

The doctor left the sermon he was preparing and followed the child. At the house he found the father crazy drunk. As the young clergyman entered—this was all of forty years ago—the fellow paised a chair high in air as if to brain the intruder.

"I'm not afraid of you nor no other man," yelled the drunken man, "and you'd better clear out!"

"I don't want you to be afraid of me," replied the clergyman, "but there is one chap you'd better be afraid of. His name is James Anderson. He lives here, and when drunk he's dangerous."

The chair dropped to the floor at this unexpected speech, and James Anderson, already half sobered, begged pardon for his brutality and promised to keep the peace. Then the rector went placidly back to his sermon writing.

Dean Hoffman's business ability was considered of a high order by New York men of affairs, and his capacity for doing things was recognized by his associates in seminary management, who sometimes made a play upon his initials (E. A.) and call him Executive Ability Hoffman. He was popular alike with students and faculty.

ST. PIERRE'S ONE PAPER.

Father McGrail Secured File of Le Colonie For a Year Past.

Mr. Robert T. Hill of the geological survey, who returned recently from Martinique, tells an interesting story of the enterprise of Rev. Father McGrail, chaplain of the Dixie, says the Washington Post. When the vessel reached Fort de France, Father McGrail, realizing the value to the party of a complete file of Le Colonie, the only newspaper published in St. Pierre, for the year prior to the destruction of that city, and especially those issues for the two months immediately preceding the eruption, went about over Fort de France collecting stray copies here and there until finally he had a complete file for the twelve months up until the city was destroyed.

These he intended for the use of the Dixie party and was about to distribute them among the various members when Mr. Hill called his attention to the vast value of this perhaps the only file of Le Colonie for the twelve months up until the eruption in existence and which gives the details of the Mont Pelée phenomena from the day the volcano first showed signs of activity up until the day before St. Pierre was swept from the face of the earth. So instead of following up his first intention Father McGrail kept the file, which is still in his possession and which in all likelihood will be deposited in the library of congress. A movement is now on foot to secure this valuable file for the library, which will in all probability be successful.

The work of gathering together copies of Le Colonie involved a great deal of walking about from house to house. The people of Fort de France set no store by them, however, and in this respect Father McGrail had no difficulty in securing them.

SHALL LEE HAVE A STATUE?

Charles Francis Adams Proposes One to Stand in Washington.

Charles Francis Adams of Boston delivered the oration before the Phi Beta Kappa society of the University of Chicago the other day, his subject being, "Shall Robert E. Lee Have a Statue?"

He said in part: I hold it to be certain that the year 1903 will recognize the somewhat essential fact, indubitably true, that all the honest conviction, all the loyalty, all the patriotic devotion and self sacrifice, were not, any more than all the courage, on the victors' side.

Lee represented, individualized, all that was highest and best in the southern mind and the Confederate cause, the loyalty to state, the keen sense of honor and personal obligation, the slightly archaic, the almost patriarchal, love of dependent family and home.

I look forward with confidence to the time when the bronze effigy of Robert E. Lee, mounted on his charger and with the insignia of his Confederate rank, will from its pedestal in the nation's capital look across the Potomac at his old home at Arlington.

When that time comes, Lee's monument will typify the historical appreciation of all that goes to make up the loftiest type of character, military and civic exemplified in an opponent once dreaded but ever respected.

Above all, it will symbolize and commemorate that loyal acceptance of the consequences of defeat and the patient upbuilding of a people under new conditions by constitutional means which I hold to be the greatest educational lesson America has yet taught to a once skeptical but now silenced world.

TWENTY HOUR TRAINS

Successful Trips of the Chicago-New York Fliers.

MARVELOUS BURESTS OF SPEED.

Long Stretches of Track Covered at the Rate of More Than Eighty-Mile an Hour—Schedule Beaten on Both New York Central and Pennsylvania Roads.

Speeding at times at more than eighty miles an hour and maintaining an average of nearly fifty miles an hour, including stops, between New York city and Chicago, new records in railroad speed were established by the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads the other day, says the New York Herald. Duplicate trains on each road, moving east and west with the speed of the wind and yet controlled with the precision of clockwork, covered the distance of 880 miles on one road and 912 miles on the other and arrived at their destinations before they were due.

It was just 9:26 o'clock the other morning when the Twentieth Century limited of the New York Central pulled into the Grand Central station. The train was four minutes ahead of time. The Pennsylvania special arrived in Jersey City at 8:36 o'clock, which was two minutes before the train was due. Fliers on both roads made the westward run in three minutes less than the scheduled time of twenty hours.

By the inauguration of the twenty hour service between New York and Chicago, length of run considered, American railroads take the first place among the great carriers of the world for long distance runs. The Sud express of the Orleans and Midi railroad, which makes the 496½ miles from Paris to Bayonne in eight hours and fifty-nine minutes, is the world's fastest train, as it averages 51.13 miles an hour for the distance traveled, which is approximately one-half the distance from New York to Chicago.

The Twentieth Century limited in covering 880 miles, or more than double the French road, with an average of forty-nine miles an hour is, in the opinion of railroad men, entitled to pre-eminence as the world's most famous train. The Empire State express very nearly equals the speed record of the Sud express, but the new flier to Chicago does all that the Empire State does and much more besides. The two great trains of England, the East Coast express and the West Coast express, one running to Edinburgh and the other to Glasgow from London, average fifty miles an hour for a distance of 400 miles, which is less than from this city to Buffalo.

Even faster time for short stretches was made by the westward bound trains, which reached a maximum of ninety-five miles an hour on the Pennsylvania.

Possibilities of even shorter runs to Chicago are suggested by the speeding of the Central and Pennsylvania fliers when long stretches of flat country were reached. The Twentieth Century limited made its fastest miles in Indiana. The train shot past Rolling Prairie, a small town in that state, going a mile in forty-two seconds or at the rate of 85.7 miles an hour. For three miles this great speed was kept up, but so smooth was the track and the train so well balanced that the passengers could hardly believe the testimony of their stop watches. Between Chicago and New York there were eight stops for the Twentieth Century limited.

Locomotives were changed at each of these, involving a few minutes' delay. From Albany locomotive No. 2,300, with Colonel Van Voorhes at the throttle, brought the train to New York. The run down the Hudson was made in two hours and fifty-one minutes, or an average of fifty miles an hour. All of the passengers agreed that the trip was delightful and that no inconvenience had been felt by the great speed.

With its shorter route the Pennsylvania reaches Chicago in twenty hours, with an average of only 43½ miles an hour, but it has some heavy grades to climb in crossing the Alleghany mountains. The Pennsylvania special which made the eastward run left Philadelphia twelve minutes late. During the run to New York the lost time was made up and the highest rate of speed of the trip from Chicago was reached. Between Philadelphia and Newark several miles were timed at the rate of eighty-six miles an hour. It was thirty-six minutes after 8 o'clock when the train pulled in at Jersey City, which was two minutes ahead of the schedule.

Arriving in Chicago, the Lake Shore flier was four minutes in advance of schedule time and the Pennsylvania three minutes. Officials in Chicago on both roads say that an eighteen hour run could be made under conditions just as satisfactory. The highest speed attained by the Pennsylvania was ninety-five miles an hour for one spur. The Lake Shore's top speed was ninety miles an hour. Its engine was not pushed at any time to the limit. The Pennsylvania train spun off miles in forty-two, forty-three and forty-four seconds near Dune Park.

Addition to the English Tongue.

Two new words have been added to the English language during the last two years, says the Western Mail, both of them having relation to the acquisition of property—"commandeer," signifying compulsory acquisition and is a polite name for theft, and "morganser," signifying the legal acquisition of the whole, or practically the whole, of any commodity with the object of excluding competition.

HYPNOTISM BY TELEPHONE

IDLEWILDE PARK.

Sunday, June 15 to 21.

The services of Prof. Lawrence Kenner of Houston, Texas, have been obtained for a series of his telephone feats as an outside attraction, at a great cost.

Prof. Kenner is pronounced by scientists and the press to be the greatest living exponent of this science and a wonder of the age.

He has performed this feat in all the large cities throughout the United States. He performed last summer on Young's Pier at Atlantic City, N. J., operating from Philadelphia.

A platform will be built on Park grounds with telephone and cots for subjects. He will work from the city. After two subjects have been hypnotized and Doctors have made tests, then he will return and perform other miraculous feats and awaken subjects. They will fall as shot through the heart. Wonderful and exciting. This feat will be performed every evening promptly at 8 o'clock. Don't miss it.

EXERCISES

OF THE ST. FRANCIS DE SALES SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT.

Drew a Large Audience to the Auditorium Thursday Night—A Fine Program.

On Thursday night the annual commencement of the St. Francis de Sales church was held at the Auditorium, which was crowded with relatives and friends of the graduates and those who took part in the highly interesting program.

The curtain rose at 8:15 and the first number was a grand march by about 60 young ladies. The spirit of the march and chorus, was a greeting of Ireland to America. The difficult evolutions of the march were executed in an almost perfect manner, and presented a pretty picture, those participating being daintily gowned in white with green sash drapery and pink footers.

The salutatory was delivered in pleasing style by Leo D. Bader, and the valedictory by Thomas Bowman, was an oratorical production of merit. The comic song, "Learning McFadden to Waltz," by Stanley Connell, and the topsy turvy scene by twenty little boys brought forth roars of laughter.

The musical numbers, including instrumental and vocal solos, were greatly enjoyed by the audience.

The operetta, "Genevieve," was of course, the principal musical number of the evening. The solo parts were all artistically taken, while the chorus singing was really creditable, showing a remarkable amount of rehearsal work well done.

The program follows:

Opening Chorus—"Greeting from Ireland to America," Young Ladies, assisted by Misses Annie Gainer, Katie Sheridan, Katie Mincer, Nellie Downey, Elsie Hirschberg, and Messrs. Downey and Warden.

Salutatory—Leo D. Bader.

"The Choir Boy's Dream"—Song and Tableau (Lambert) Gertrude Koos and Leo Bader; Violin—Frank Mueller; Piano—Elsie Hirschberg.

"Forsaken"—Trio (Weigand) First violin—Frank Mueller; second violin—Fred Rigger; Piano—Annie Rigger.

"Rosalia"—Vocal Solo, Elsie Hirschberg.

Valedictory—Thos. A. Bowman. Honors, etc.

Graduating Class—Helen Brennan, Gertrude Young, Stanley Connell, Leo D. Bader, Thos. A. Bowman.

Presentation of Diplomas—By Rev. B. M. O'Boylan.

Accompanists—Helen Early, Elsie Hirschberg, Letitia Wildman, Lina Schafer, Anna Rigger, Mary Gainer, Irene Cosgrove.

The following pupils entertained the audience with instrumental music, beginning with the opening of doors: Rose Maginness, Emma Siegel, Catherine Magee, Lizzie Devlin, Emmeline Kearney, Susie Ferry, Hannah Sullivan, Catherine McKenna, Marie Antoinette Welsh, Rosanna Dennison, Bernice Floyd, Annie Wemath, Katharine Kane, Mary Nichols, Goldie Daly, Gertrude Greely, Kate Shaughnessy, Cecelia Friednaur, Marguerite Ganey, Irene Cosgrove, Bertha Williams, Winifred Evans, Ella Diehl, Lina Schafer, Mary Voight.

Mandolins—Hazel Kirk, Gertrude Greely, Katie Sullivan, Julia McCarthy. Guitar—Mary Siegel, Clyde Nagly. Banjo—Fred Rigger.

Violin—Rose M. Floyd, Frank Mueller, Fred Rigger, Bernard Reilly, Jos. Shaughnessy.

"Dogwood Winter."

A man from North Carolina who was visiting in Philadelphia in the course of conversation used the expression "dogwood winter."

"What do you mean by dogwood winter?" asked his host.

"Don't you really know what dogwood winter is?" demanded the man from Hickory, N. C. "There is always a spell of it in May when the dogwood tree is in bloom. For several days there is cold, disagreeable, cloudy weather and often a touch of frost. Down our way it never fails, and we call it dogwood winter. I thought the phrase was general."

POULTRY POINTERS.

Game chickens have more meat in proportion to their height than any other breed of fowls.

When the chickens are growing fast, it is a good plan to mix a little bone-meal in their soft feed.

Smearing wheat with kerosene or turpentine and feeding it to the chickens is a good remedy for gapes.

Adding some carbolic acid and putting on hot will secure much better results from the whitewashing of the poultry house.

While it is at no time advisable to keep food of any kind before the fowls all the time, it will be an advantage to keep milk where they can drink all they want.

Fowls do not run together in large numbers. They will always divide into flocks of small size and will select different feeding grounds, always provided they have the opportunity.

A growing chicken, like a growing animal, requires plenty of good, wholesome food supplied liberally and often in order to enable them to grow and mature rapidly and to develop properly.

Even soft coal will soon be hard to get.

Judge Douglass.

(Lancaster Eagle.)

At the Democratic judicial convention at Newark Tuesday the Fifth Judicial Circuit of Ohio, Judge S. M. Douglas whose term of office has expired, was re-nominated by acclamation. In accepting the nomination Judge Douglas made a highly entertaining and instructive talk reviewing the duties of the responsible position and trust. Judge Douglas is a lawyer of rare legal attainments and is peculiarly fitted for the bench and the fifteen counties composing the Fifth district, the 150,000 voters of those counties, the 500,000 inhabitants and 900 lawyers therein are especially fortunate in having the services of so able a judge. The unanimous and voluntary endorsement of his party to the position is but an evidence of the confidence imposed in him.
